Not-so-controlled cruise

Andy Whitney (left, white shirt) relaxes as Bethel Rescue's Jim Bennett and Josh Aylward ready Millie Jackson (on stretcher) for transport last Thursday. Whitney had just pulled Jackson from her sinking car, after she dozed off on Route 26 and ended up 40 feet from shore in Round Pond. Jackson believes she traveled that distance because she had her car, a 2005 Buick Century (left, also visible in the distance beyond her upraised hands), on cruise control. At right in foreground is Jackson's son, Dennis. (Photos: M. Daniels)

Local rescuers pull woman, 84, from sinking car

"My first impulse was to get the window down and get screaming," said Millie Jackson. Last Thursday morning, Jackson, 84, was driving north on Route 26, returning home to Bethel after a blood test in Norway. But she apparently dozed off near the Greenwood/Woodstock transfer station. Her 2005 Buick Century crossed over the southbound lane, hit some rocks, and ended ed up 40 feet out into Round Pond.

"I woke up when the car hit some rocks, and I saw the water splashing up over the windshield," she said.

Jackson, who doesn't know how to swim and is "scared of water," still had the presence of mind to quickly open her automatic window before the car began to sink.

She started yelling for help and waving.

It worked. "I realized people were stopping," she said.

One was Diane Gaudreau of Woodstock, who called 911.

Another was Andy Whitney, 21, of the Bethel Fire Department.

"I remember seeing him take his shirt off and swim out," she said.

Meanwhile, Jackson became aware of water gushing in around the bottom of the car doors.

When Whitney arrived, "He

Young hearts and hands bring borderless music

Young pianists from around the world will study and perform at Gould Academy from July 2 to July 21 as part of "Music Without Borders," an international piano festival now in its fourth year.

The young musicians look forward to coming to Gould and Bethel, according to the festival director, acclaimed Georgian-Russian pianist and teacher Dr. Tamara Poddubnaya.

Speaking through Don Christie, a Gould alumnus and trustee who helps coordinate the festival, Poddubnaya said they enjoy the experience "because of the place — the excellent pianos available at Gould for the students to use for practice and public performances — as well as the village setting and the people of the Bethel community, including summer visitors, who give us such a warm welcome and have become such faithful fans of our festival."

She went on to say "how important it was for students to be able to learn in such a beautiful and peaceful place, far removed from the noise and hectic pace of their usual big city conservatory environment."

Board sends Bethel's last police officer off with thanks, bonus

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Bethel's four decades of self-policing came to an end Wednesday afternoon.

When his shift finished at 3, Lt. S. R. White, the Bethel Police Department's sole remaining officer, drove the BPD cruiser to the town garage, then returned in his own car to the Town Office, where he turned in his radio and keys.

His beat of the past six years was now being covered by deputies from the Oxford County Sheriff's Department.

White kept his service pistol, which town selectmen had agreed to sell him, and his badge.

And he walked away with a severance package of $7,212.

The amount of the package had been decided by the selectmen at specially called meeting Monday evening.

The brief meeting was notably free of the contention and hard feelings that marked much of Bethel's discussion of police coverage over the past year.

The vote to approve the package was unanimous, and the figure the selectmen agreed to included a $2,400 bonus, offered in recognition of White's performance throughout that difficult time.

Town Manager Jim Doar credited White: "for stepping up in the last year to really run a police department when there weren't really a lot of "options" — for lack of a better term.

"I don't think it could have been done without him, given all the turmoil that was going on," the town manager said. Selectman Don Bennett proposed the $2,400 bonus figure, which was based on $200 a month for that year.

"An additional amount per month for his last year of service to this community, which has been truly special service," Bennett said, "doing the work of a police chief and doing many extra hours to keep our town served and protected."

Bennett pointed particularly to the difficulty of staffing and managing the depart-

School Board urging: Think twice before giving DOE your child's Social Security number

By ALISON ALOISIO

Concerned about the use of SAD 44 student Social Security numbers by the Maine Department of Education, the SAD 44 School Board Monday unanimously approved a resolution asking the Maine Legislature to rescind the law allowing the practice.

The law is to take effect this fall.

The board's vote also included a directive for SAD 44 to clearly explain to parents this fall that they are not required to allow the district to report the numbers to the state.

Chairman Sid Pew took the lead on the resolution.

"I think it's an invasion of privacy," he said.

The law (LD1356), passed in 2009, is intended to help track the performance of students before and after graduation, by linking student information between the DOE and the Department of Labor. The project, known as the Maine Statewide Longitudinal Data System, identifies the occupations of former students whose social security numbers are in employment records. The purpose is to evaluate and improve education programs.

While the DOE can require districts to collect and report SS numbers, children's numbers are reported only if parents opt into the program. The law states specifically that an explanation of this be included when requesting parental consent.

But Pew said he is concerned that the implications of participation may not be made clear enough. He noted that in 2006 the Veterans' Administration inadvertently compromised the SS numbers of some 25 million veterans when a computer disk was stolen.

Pew said SAD 44 should include wording in paperwork sent home to parents encouraging them to think carefully about their choice.

In a written description of his rationale on the issue,

DETAILS LEFT OUT OF TAX STORY

To the Editor:

We have just read your article from the June 24th edition entitled "Newry taken to court over $2.8 million home assessment". As the owners bringing the suit, we felt that a few details were overlooked.

We did not provide building cost and insurance data to the assessor because Maine law requires a home to be assessed at "just value". The "just value" is fair market value - not the cost to build the home or what the home is insured for - what the home would sell for to a willing, unrelated party. Cost data from before the economic collapse in 4Q of 2008 has no bearing on what the market value of the home is in 2009. Few, if any, Newry homeowners have been forced to provide actual cost data after completion of construction to the town - is this now going to be a requirement for all homeowners?

When we received our tax bill for the completed home, we were pretty certain that we were overvalued. Prior to contesting the assessment, we paid for an appraisal from a local, licensed appraiser. The appraiser has twenty years experience in the area. Although we would have loved the value of the house to be $2.8 million, unfortunately, it came in at $1.8 million. The tax assessor rejected the appraisal. We offered to pay for another appraisal to be done by an appraiser selected by the town; the assessor rejected this offer.

The Newry tax card consists of numbers based on the size of the house, and a subjective "grade". Based on the size of the house, and the land value, our assessment as shown on our current tax card is $1.2 million. The "grade" is not based on the size of the home, only on the quality of the finish. Newry then used this subjective "grade", to tack on another $1.6 million of assessment. As Maine law also requires that the value must be just relative to other homes in the municipality, we reviewed tax cards of similar quality homes. The largest increase due to the subjective "grade", other than ours, was under $4 million. Had our home received this largest ever subjective increase, the total assessed value of our house would be $1.6 million, not $2.8 million. This represents an over-assessment of just over $10,000 per year in tax liability.

While the article implies that the tax assessor would have worked with us despite the appeal being denied, the evidence is to the contrary. The assessor agreed that he had made a square footage error in the measurement of our home. But, it was not until six months later - two weeks before the Oxford County Assessment Review meeting - that the tax assessor finally made changes to our tax card to attempt to correct his error. (There are still errors on our tax card that have not yet been addressed.) We made an offer to the town to pay for another appraisal done by someone of their choosing and that was denied. We provided a list of homes that were of equal or better quality of finish as our home; no effort was made by the tax assessor to visit these homes or review the publicly available data we provided in terms of photos and finish.

Both the appraised value of the home, and the assessed value of the home, without a hugely inflated "grade", support a "just value" of $1.6-1.8 million. We are happy to work with the town to resolve this and hope that the article was incorrect about pre-conditions to an open dialogue. Otherwise, we must continue to pursue relief from the court.

REMEMBERING DOT CANTWELL

To the Editor:

The recent passing of Dorothy "Dot" Canwell should not go by without some note on what a remarkable and courageous individual she was.

I have known her for over twenty-five years as a dedicated musician, playing the piano at countless Grange meetings not only in this region, but around the state and parts of the nation. She could not read music, but played "by ear" as the phrase goes. And what a player she was! Pianos seemed to come "alive" the minute she sat down at the stool. She loved her music and it showed as she appeared to be transformed from a frail old lady with two canes (in later years) to a vibrant spirit with a broad smile on her face and delight in her eyes. She was happiest when she was giving others pleasure with her music.

I always took particular enjoyment noting the expressions on the faces of the initiated when she commenced combining whistling with her piano playing. It was a classic act destined to get one's attention.

How many times, especially in later years, I assisted her in getting up and down stairways that would have daunted lesser individuals. She remained determined to overcome these obstacles and by taking her time with minimal assistance on my part, she triumphed.

How pleased I was that she was able to be part of the opening of the exhibit on the history of the Maine State Grange sponsored by the Bethel Historical Society in 2008. She really made it a memorable event by playing some traditional Grange tunes and marches - and, of course, treated us to her classic whistling one more time. I shall always recall her fondly as a thoroughly kind and generous soul who touched so many lives on so many occasions for so very long.

'BOA, SCROGG AND MOSES' PERHAPS? Whatever they end up being named, this trio of voyagers is now on course for a far happier fate than the anonymous ending they appeared bound for a week ago. Jeff Parsons tells the tale in the letter below. (Photo: M. Daniels)

THE BAD, THE GOOD, AND THE CUTE

To the Editor:

One day last week a family who had rented canoes from us were paddling down the Androscoggin River. Just downstream from West Bethel they saw a plastic bag in the water.

It seemed to be 'squirmy' they said. When they paddled over, hoisted it in, and checked inside they found a trio of kittens - obviously neatly bound up and thrown in the water to their fate. (That's the bad).

The family carefully kept them warm, and took them to our place where Jim and Laura Hobbs, two of our WorkCamping staff took the kittens in and cared for them. Bethel Animal Hospital gave a free examination and consultation. Jim and Laura bought special milk for them, and have been nursing them ever since.

As of now (four days later) they are doing well, looking around, and enjoying life. (That's the good).

Turns out they were about ten days old when they were so horribly discarded. They are various colors, but healthy and of unknown descent. (That's the cute).

BETHEL ROTARY SAYS THANKS

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Rotary Club of Bethel, we would like to thank the Bethel community for their strong support of our 15th Annual Rotary Cup Challenge Golf Tournament, held on June 28 at the Bethel Inn Resort.

With the generous support of our Title Sponsors, Norway Savings Bank and Dream Realty, along with our luncheon sponsors, The Good Food Store and Northeast Bank, our club once again raises funds to support our annual Scholarship Program.

Although the weather may have dampened many adamant golfers, our community support and enthusiasm could not have been greater. The many local businesses and individuals who supported our efforts with "Tee Signs," "Silent Auction" items, and worked as volunteers alongside our dedicated Rotarians, made the event truly spectacular.

And most importantly, we would like to recognize the fine staff at the Bethel Inn Resort for their continuous support of both our efforts and the many other activities they support in our community.

Rotary International is made up of 1.2 million dedicated individuals working through 33,000 local clubs in over 200 countries. Our local Rotary Club is dedicated to making a difference in our community and through the many projects we support around the world.

On behalf of all those we support in our community, our Rotary Club truly says "thank you" to all in the Bethel community who supported this event and our other projects throughout the year. We simply could not do it without you!

ABOUT OUR FOURTH

To the Editor:

I recently found the following information on the internet and thought it would be of interest to Bethel Citizen readers:

"Thus may the 4th of July, that glorious and ever memorable day, be celebrated through America, by the sons of freedom, from age to age till time shall be no more. Amen and Amen." Virginia Gazette on July 18th, 1777.

"School children in America learn the basic history of the events surrounding the Fourth of July, but the details of this monumental occasion in American history somehow fall through the cracks.

"Although July 4th is celebrated as America's official split from Britain's rule and the beginning of the American Revolution, the actual series of events show the process took far longer than a single day.

"The original resolution was introduced by Richard Henry Lee of Virginia on June 7, 1776, and called the Continental Congress to declare the United States free from British rule.

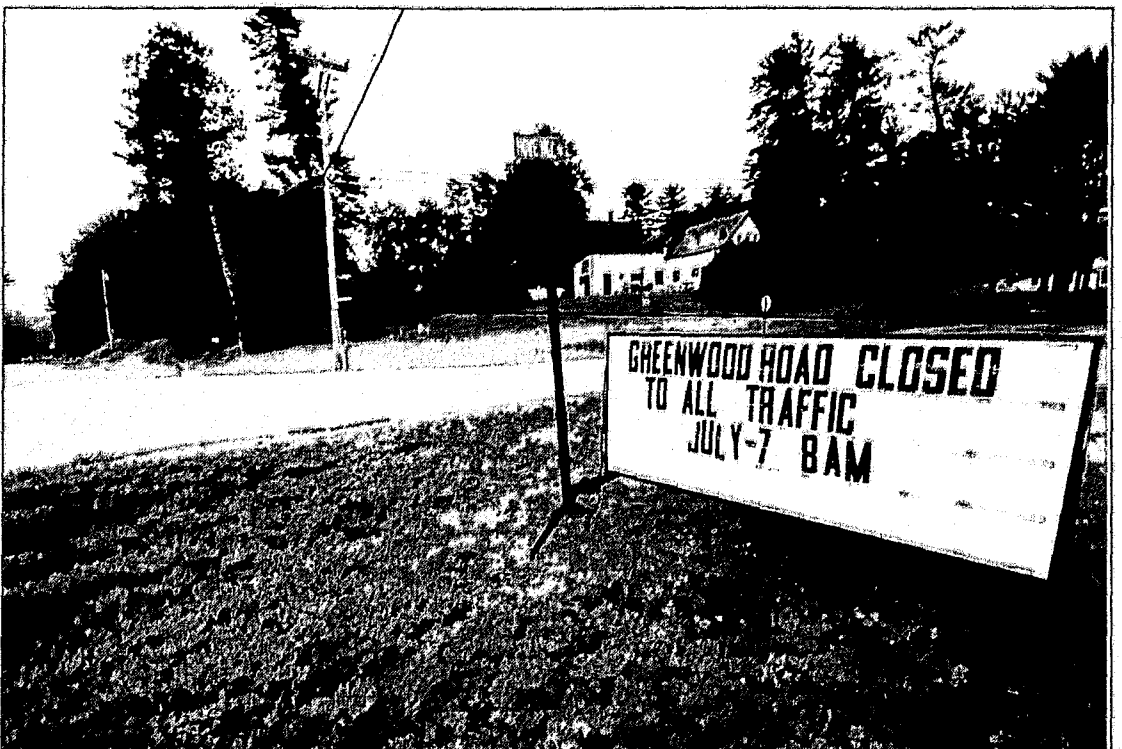

"On June 11, 1776, the colonies' Second Continental Congress, meeting in Philadelphia, formed a committee with the express purpose of drafting a document that would formally sever their ties with Great Britain. Some of the committee included Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Roger Sherman. The document was drafted by Thomas Jefferson. A total of 86 changes were made to his draft. The final version, the document that we know as the Declaration of Independence, was officially adopted by the Continental Congress on July 4, although the resolution that led to the writing of the Declaration was actually approved two days earlier.

"On July 8, 1776, the first public reading of the Declaration was held in Philadelphia's Independence Square to the ringing of bells and band music.

"One year later, on July 4, 1777, Philadelphia marked Independence Day by adjourning Congress and celebrating with bonfires, bells and fireworks. The custom eventually spread to other towns both large and small. Observations throughout the nation became even more common at the end of the War of 1812 with Great Britain.

"In 1941, Congress declared July 4 a legal Federal holiday. Today, communities across the nation mark this major midsummer holiday with parades, fireworks, picnics and the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" and marches by John Philip Sousa.

The road will remain open until 8 a.m., Town and Highway Manager Kim Sparks said, to allow as many people as possible to get to work. asked me if I could come out the window."

Jackson was skeptical, she said, "but he started pulling me."

He also started cutting her seat belt with a knife, and asked her to try to unbuckle it.

"I tried, and I might have, but I'm not sure," she remembers. "I tried to put my head out the window, and I pushed with my feet, and he did the rest."

Once she was clear of the car, Whitney swam her back to shore.

She was taken by ambulance to Stephens Memorial Hospital to be checked, and was released to her son within a couple of hours, she said.

Now she's back at home trying to dry out the contents of her purse, as well as a number of dolls she had in the car.

And she's been fielding plenty of phone calls from family and friends.

"All I can say is, 'Thank God for Andy and the others,'" she said. "They did an excellent job."

Whitney's account Whitney returned the compliment, saying he was impressed with the way Jackson handled herself in the situation. She remained calm as he tried to free her, he said.

"She was strapped in a sinking car, and she asked me if I was all right," he said. "I thought that was funny."

Whitney said Jackson had fully opened the window.

By then, the water was near the bottom of the window. As he struggled to get her out, the motion caused the water to fill the car more quickly.

It was coming in the window and coming up fast," he said.

Whitney cut the upper seat belt strap, he said, but Jackson must have succeeded in unbuckling it because she came free of the lap belt.

He pulled her out relatively easily, he said, because she was floating.

Then, with Jackson on her back in the water, he grasped her across one shoulder and under the other arm and swam for shore.

Another passer-by, Jeremy Morin of Gilead, came out to meet them and help, Whitney said.

Gaudreau, who had also swum to the car, stayed near it until it was determined no one else was inside.

Whitney said several emergency-training experiences helped him in the situation.

The Fire Department teaches extrication from vehicles (although not sinking ones).

That training, he said, prompted him to remember to bring a knife to cut the seat belt, and to tilt the steering wheel up to create more room to maneuver.

Red Cross lifesaving swimming classes he took when he was younger helped too, Whitney said, as well as Telstar Challenge classes he had in high school.

ment over that year, as well for White, "as the pure anguish of not knowing whether you've got a job or you don't."

"Trying to work with Jim and make a schedule, when you got guys who say they want to come and work, and then they don't show up."

"And you've got guys who you worked hard to bring in," Bennett said, but who ultimately "have just jumped ship."

"What the ..."

But Selectman Bob Everett said he was initially skeptical about a severance package.

"My first thought was: 'What the hell are we doing that for?'" Everett said.

"I'm sure we've had other people we've laid off in the past for various reasons, and we didn't give them severance packages."

But then, Everett said, he began to consider that neither White nor the town's law enforcement had "skipped a beat" over that period.

"Times are hard and money is not easily acquired," he told White, "but I thought that things went well with just a one-horse outfit."

"To pull that off for six months or eight months, that's a pretty neat trick," said Everett, who for many years served his country in a different blue uniform.

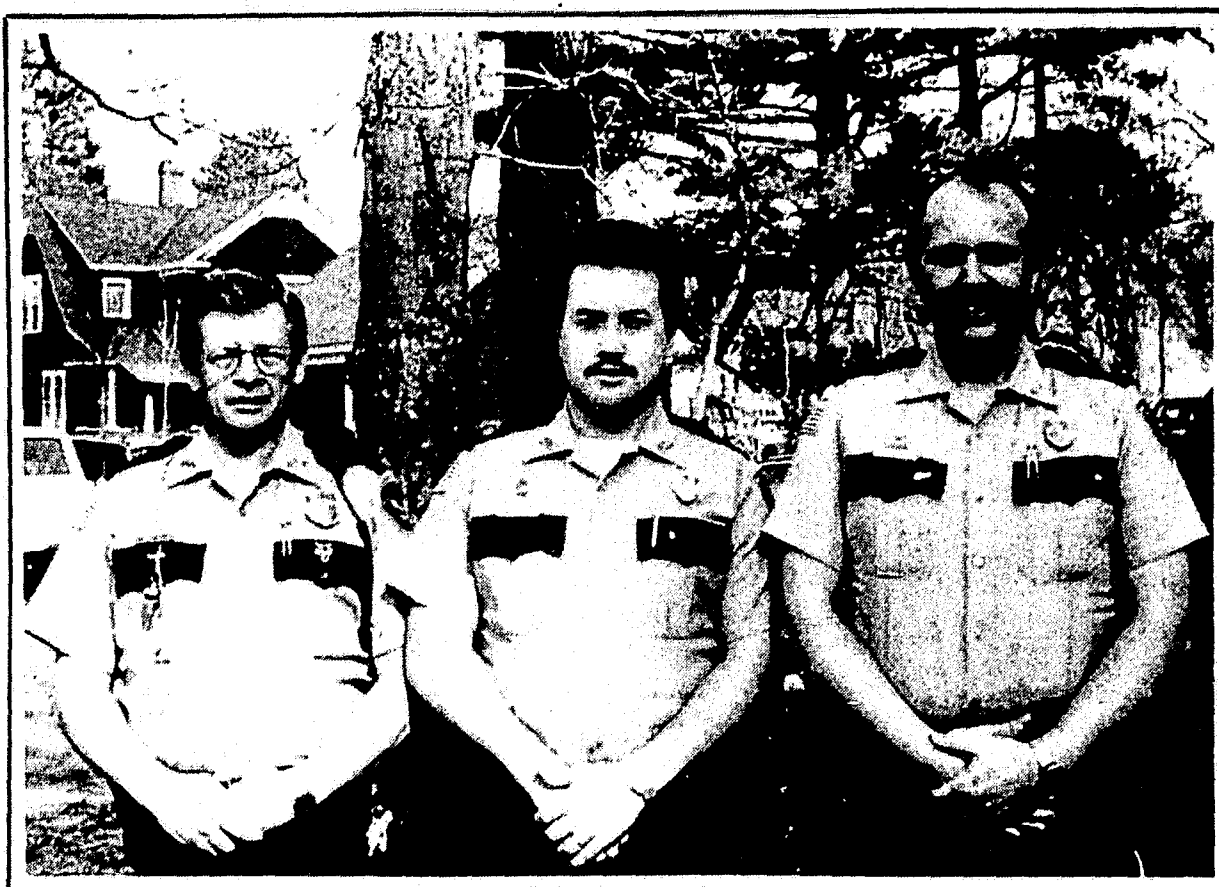

"I know how to do watch bills and stuff like that, and it's not easy."

Board Chairman Stan Howe also thanked White.

"I've been quietly very nervous about this period of time," Howe conceded, "because anything could happen, but I think you held it together, and I think it's a tribute to you that one of the things that did happen is that nothing adverse happened."

"I think it's well within the bounds of propriety that we offer you this," Howe said.

TURNOVER AT THE TOP. One of the chronic problems of the Bethel Police Department over the years was turnover throughout its ranks. Brian Stowell was chief when this circa 1990 photo was taken. But he was eventually succeeded by both Dale Bellman and, later, Darren Tripp. Others were to follow.

Pew noted, "As a board we must ask parents to refrain from handing over children's Social Security numbers. Attaching a child's social security number to their achievements and other information is a violation of their privacy."

Earlier this month, the Maine Civil Liberties Union released a statement noting that a recent letter from the DOE to Maine superintendents includes six paragraphs about the benefits of collecting the numbers, but only one sentence noting that disclosure is not required.

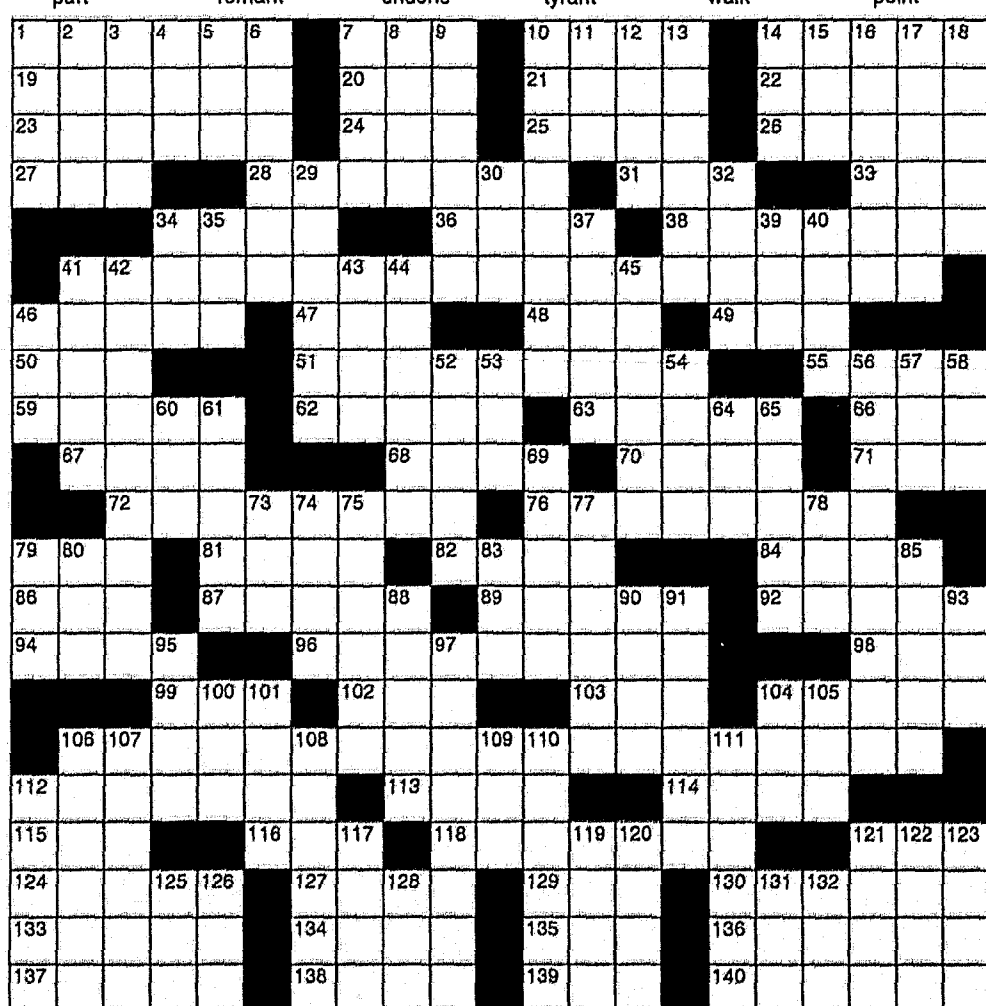

"Parents should think long and hard before handing over their children's Social Security numbers for this new tracking program," the MCLU statement said.

Pew said he planned to contact other school boards about supporting an effort to rescind the law, and said he had contacted state Rep. Matt Peterson about it.

The SAD 44 resolution will also be submitted to the Maine School Board Association for consideration at its annual meeting this fall.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

I, for one, am really glad that summer has arrived. So far it's been on the cool side and that's fine with me. It is usually right about this time of the year that we start experiencing some darned hot and humid days. We've been pretty lucky so far.

I like the summer weather on the cooler side for a number of reasons. Low night-time temperatures are much more comfortable for sleeping. I hate having a fan blowing on me all night and I know there are nights ahead when two fans will be necessary. But for now it's quite pleasant and I do like that.

I also like the idea that one can work outside without dropping from heat exhaustion. Notice I said idea, because I haven't actually spent a lot of time working outside, but if I want to I could do it.

The best thing about the cooler weather is the clothing options. I can still wear bulge-friendly clothing without being too hot. I favor slacks or jeans and long-sleeve, bulky tops to cover a multitude of bulges and flab. All too soon I will have to let a lot more hang out than I care to or suffer extreme discomfort.

There was a time when I wore cute little shorts and halter tops on hot summer days and looked pretty darn good. Of course, those were younger and slimmer days.

With my ever-expanding shape, self-respect and social decency dictate that I keep myself covered. I haven't even owned a bathing suit in years and years. I had a brief lapse in reality a few weeks ago when I considered buying a bathing suit thinking I might go swimming with the grandkids this summer. A trip to the department store slapped me back into reality in a hurry.

I certainly don't want a giant hot pink hibiscus on my butt.

I actually found one in my size, or at least according to the tag it was, but parts of me that it would not cover could get me arrested.

Some of the bathing suits, if they did come in my size and praise be that they don't, I wouldn't even be able to figure out how to put them on. They seemed to be more like a contraption of straps with little pockets of material than bathing suits. And those little thong numbers, well, don't they just give a whole new meaning to wedgie!

I can only imagine what a woman of the Victorian era would think if she could see the swimwear of 2010. I can only imagine what the men of that era would think.

I wouldn't care to revisit that period when women were treated as second-rate citizens, but after seeing the current bathing suit styles, the top to bottom coverage of the mid-1800's does have a certain amount of appeal to me.

The women did not wear bathing suits; they wore bathing dresses. They were neck high, long-sleeve affairs that went down to mid-shin and weights were often sewn into the hems so they wouldn't billow up in the water and reveal anything. And a matching pair of bloomers down to the ankles were also required. Imagine what it was like to swim in those outfits. At least they concealed the bulges along with everything else.

It just so happens that I received two catalogs today. One was from a company that markets to mature full-figured women and one that markets to a much younger and slimmer audience. The first catalog had a few bathing suits that were one piece and the basic style was okay, but the patterns were loud, garish floral prints. If I ever do wear a bathing suit again I certainly don't want a giant hot pink hibiscus on my butt.

The other catalog had a number of slinky little bathing suits in both one-piece and two, but I think some of the one piece suits had less material than a handkerchief. I suppose they would be fine on the size 2 figure that was available, but what amazed me was that they were also available up to size 4X. The only thing that was more amazing was a two-piece bathing suit made of some miracle fiber that was one size fits all!

The way I see it this won't be the year that I buy a new bathing suit. If the weather stays cool I won't even have to think about it and if it gets so hot that I feel I need the relief I can always drape myself with a sheet, weigh down the ends, put on a pair of bloomers and call it a swimming dress.

Maine Minerals, Gems and Memorabilia Museum:

News from the Maine Mineral Symposium held in May in Augusta reported that Bethel would be the location for a Maine Minerals, Gems and Memorabilia Museum. The museum will probably be on Main Street in Bethel and a final decision by the founders should be made soon. Dr. Lawrence Stifler and Mary McFadden are the patrons/founders of the museum.

Last July these parties held a symposium at the Moses Mason House to open the proposal up for public discussion, hear other points of view and consider the possibility of entering into a partnership with the Bethel Historical Society. Dr. Carl Francis, Curator of Harvard University's Mineral Museum, was guest speaker at the symposium.

After further consideration of a joint museum, it was determined that a larger and more central location would be best for the Museum.

If the current plan can be carried out, a new museum would hopefully be ready to open within three years, maybe as soon as 2012. The prospective new owners have already acquired major one-of-a-kind collections that could attract a worldwide audience.

Jim Mann has been working on behalf of the Stiflers toward establishing a mineral museum in Bethel. His collections and exhibits of rare species and teaching displays would likely be included in any new Bethel museum.

Oil to Wood Pellets: This week a property owner in town talked about his experiences in switching from an oil-fired boiler to a wood pellet one. When he had made the decision, oil was selling at $4.599 a gallon and equivalent wood pellet fuel costs were half that amount. His hot water heating system was in fine shape but the oil fired boiler was worn out. A new oil boiler was expected to cost about $9,000 less than an equivalent wood pellet boiler. However, with oil double the cost of wood pellet fuel, changing systems seemed to be a financially sound move. Plus changing to wood pellets would help the environment and cut oil demand.

Now after two winters' experience with wood pellets, the owner is pleased with performance but found that the ash needs to be removed monthly - more often than originally planned. Currently he anticipates that wood pellet prices will rise and for now anyway oil is running at $2.70 a gallon, well below the $4.00 level. Would he do it again? It would be much harder to decide.

Bailey's Outdoor Power: Nearly two generations ago Laurence "Timer" Bailey founded Bailey's Sharp. All in the age of push power lawn mowers. From then on Mr. Bailey provided the Bethel area with an important, essential service that has continued until today. Five years ago, Mr. Bailey's grandson, Shawn Bennett, joined him. By then power had replaced most of the push in lawn mowing. The business name also changed to Bailey's Outdoor Power.

Mr. Bailey passed away last July at the age of 80 but Shawn and his brother Thaddeus have kept the Bailey tradition and service going without a hitch.

Outdoor Power has three main departments: sales of new and used equipment, repairs and a large stock room of parts. They stock parts for Ariens, B&S, Kohler, Toro, Poulan and Troy-Bilt. If a part is not on hand, they can normally get it in 48 hours. Bailey's operates pickup and delivery service. The brothers work on anything to do with lawn equipment. Bailey's sells new Toro push walk-behind lawnmowers and snow blowers; they sell Troy-Bilt lawnmowers, rototillers and riding tractors. New equipment for sale also includes turn-on-a-dime walk-behind mowers and brush mowers.

Three winters ago you may recall that a heavy snow load on their Quonset style garage caused a cave-in. A new Quonset building has replaced the old one. However, Mr. Bailey did not have insurance on the building and he had to replace it at his own expense.

Surprise 60th Anniversary Party: At Littlefield Beaches Saturday June 19th, 200 friends and family of Phyllis and Richard "Sonny" Blake threw a surprise party to celebrate the Blakes' 60th wedding anniversary. A r-rangements were put together by Littlefield's owner, staff and friends. The party included a potluck supper, cake and a Champaign toast. The Blakes have spent their summers at Littlefield's almost since it opened.

Maine Summer Traditions: Along with antiques, moccasins, lobster rolls and fried clams comes homemade lawn and camp furniture.

In South Bethel on Route 26 only two hundred yards from the Baileys, Keith and Marilyn Hamel have opened a roadside outlet called Onerworks (One-der-works). Their roadside marketplace displays a variety of wood products made in their own large work shop behind the store. The Hamels are continuing the same line of Adirondack chairs started by Al Sumner for his Railroad Street business years ago. In fact, when I stopped by on Saturday, the retired Mr. Sumner was hard at work at the table saw. Al's passed his designs on to the Hamels. So he is officially a consultant for designs and manufacturing.

To keep with the current trend, chairs are available in natural wood finish or painted in a variety of pastel colors. Eventually Mr. Hamel plans a product line of 40 items. He has already tried out some of the Onerworks items at a stand on Route 1 since it has the reputation of Maine's finest tourist trap. He is hoping for a similar marketing experience at their store and display on Route 26.

Onerworks is easy to find and get to - if you are looking for a comfortable lawn chair or one for your boat dock or camp, this is the place to stop.

2010 Rotary Auction: Last Saturday's Rotary yard sale and auction enjoyed fair weather and more than fair results. Auctioneer David Murphy emailed me that the initial tally showed a gross of just over $7,000 for the yard sale and auction. That number is likely to rise a bit more in the coming days. Last year's news showed the net figure to have been $6,100 - making this year look better.

One must admire the dedication and effort that the Rotary members put into their annual auctions. Collecting goods, storing them, setting up tents and tables, book-keeping, cleaning up, tearing down, disposing of left-over items (some call junk) cannot be labeled exciting work.

Last week the Bethel Inn Golf Course hosted its annual early summer golf week for juniors. Twenty-two young golfing aspirants attended. Mark Mallory and Travis Brooks were the hosts and teaching pro's for the week.

The Mason Street sidewalk construction looks finished. Some cleaning up is the only work left to be completed. Despite what some critics have said about no walkers being around to use it, I have seen a number of people, mostly young, using the new walkway. It ends at Crescent Park School.

Walking with Hays - Mayville rewards dog walks with wild life sightings. Last week, however, was exceptional. First we were able to approach three young foxes that "denied" in the stone wall leading into Birch Wood. While they were out sunning one afternoon we got to within a dozen feet of them. Two days later while walking along the edge of corn field and river bank, Hays signaled that he smelled something special in the river bank's brush.

A few minutes later, after we passed, a deer popped out and bounded over the field - Hays tugging at leash. Sunday we tracked a moose along the edge of the same field and caught up with him at the far end of the field. From our front row seats we watched as he walked into the river then swam across, climbed out and walked up the bank out of sight.

Poet off to island
Poet and author Bruce Guernsey next week begins a two-week stay at the Norton Island Residency Program, off the Maine coast.

Bruce and his wife, the artist and jeweler Victoria Woolen-Danner, divide their time between Charleston, Illinois, where Bruce is Distinguished Professor Emeritus at Eastern Illinois University, and their Bethel home on Paradise Road.

The recipient of numerous academic and literary awards, including two Fulbright lectureships, Bruce most recently had an essay published in the anthology "Afield: American Writers on Bird Dogs," which also includes the works of such writers as Thomas McGuane, Howell Raines, Jim Harrison and Tom Brokaw.

Bruce recently stepped down as editor of "The Spoon River Poetry Review." His final edition includes two poems by Dick Taylor of Bethel.

One of those poems is reprinted below.

Harley Rides to the Altar

By Dick Taylor

I'd give a rib for someone to love, and my heart would burst through the opening to take her hand. Creation was supposed to work that way long ago, but she turned out to be too beautiful, the heart swelled beyond reason, and the opening was too small. It prowls now, watching bars cut the sun to pieces, harden the night. Once in a while I run full tilt at the door in a dream raging with sweetness, or more often chirp from a toy swing, sit silent as a hawk hooded and tied to an armored hand. No need to ask why I won't let a helmet keep the wind from tangling my hair, cooling a sunburned love-struck smile with a sudden invitation to dance, the spin you take down the road to where the sky starts and your feet lift off the asphalt, innards knock at their ribs trying to get out, pistons croon through a smooth new corner and I depart curve, earth and cage at 110 forever, brainless maybe, but I've tried everything else. Now on a breeze comes the kiss of a split-second sun, and the heart races straight for the altar, glad to exhale once and for all. Looking down through blue light, a priest in green lifts scalpel, clamp, then saw from immaculate cloth because that rib given long ago left the gap too tight. He saws two more away, and there the heart drums its blood, bursting to get going.

"Harley Rides to the Altar" is one of two "Harley" poems by Taylor that appeared in the Winter/Spring 2010 edition of The Spoon River Poetry Review. Reprinted by permission.

West Bethel

by Lorrie Hoeh

Today is Canada Day, and the whole country celebrates its sovereignty. Best wishes to our neighbors to the north. Coincidentally, it is also my birthday, so I have decided that the Canadians love me and show it by having their big celebration that day. Seventy-six I am, and proud of every year.

Last week was a busy one for the Pleasant River Grange. On Tuesday they hosted Oxford Pomona Grange at their hall. Then Thursday was the regular meeting for June, and officers were elected for the coming year. Pauline Applin tells me that the grange year differs from the calendar year, with elections held in June and installation ceremonies occurring anytime from then to September. Most of last year's officers were re-elected.

This past Tuesday Grange members began the set-up of items for sale at the summer flea market. Said Flea Market will open tomorrow and Saturday, July 2 and 3, and will be open each weekend until Labor Day. Once again, I urge you to drop by and peruse the offerings. You're sure to find that certain something without which you cannot survive another day, and help the Grange at the same time.

On Sunday morning Mike and I, along with Jake, drove out to the Mud City Road, near the schoolhouse on the forest road, for our morning walk. We checked out the blackberry and blueberry crops for future reference. We were also able to pick a nice bouquet of wildflowers—daisies, black-eyed susan, birdfoot trefoil, and yarrow. At first I thought the trefoil was "butter and eggs," but checking it out in the wildflower book proved me wrong. It was a good day, because I learned something.

Watch for the opening in July of Artistic Endeavors at 312 Mayville Road. This is a new frame shop and gallery owned and operated by Norman Milliard, retired Bethel postmaster, and his partner, Peter Musso. Local artists will be invited to display their work in The Gallery portion of the space.

Bonnie Pooley and I walked the Bethel Pathway on Monday morning, fortunately missing the rain which fell most of the night. It was gratifying to see a trash barrel and a recycling barrel on site at the skateboard park. That's the good news. The bad news is that I picked up several pieces of trash and three recyclables in the immediate vicinity. At the very least, those who use the facility and want to see it kept up and/or improved should be conscientiously using the recyclable bin, because it is a source of revenue. And everyone should take that extra step or two to dispose properly of trash so that the skateboard facility and the adjoining Davis Park will remain clean and attractive to all.

The pole beans have started their climb up the trellis, the broccoli is harvest size, and little green tomatoes are forming. Our transplanted day-lilies are finally budded up and starting to open. The little white birches Mike planted are showing signs of new growth. And we now know that our cherry tree bears sweet cherries. Ergo, I was making some cherry jam on Monday and look forward to the tasting.

I also look forward to hearing from you: dhoe@megalink.net; 824-2917.

Hanover

Gardner Roberts Memorial Library will be closed Saturday, July 3 in observance of Independence Day. Independence Day is on Sunday, July 4.

The Hanover Town Office will be closed on Monday, July 5 for the Independence Day Holiday. The Hanover Planning Board will meet on July 7 at 6 p.m. at the Town Office.

The Howard Pond Preservation Association will have its annual meeting on Saturday, July 10 starting at 10 a.m. at Adam's camp.

A graveside service took place at Hanover Cemetery on Saturday, June 26 for Ida Moore, age 94, more recently from Norway and formerly from Mexico. She was the widow of Floyd Moore who died in 1963. He was a nephew of Ira Brown, a life-long resident of Hanover. The service included live music performed by Mrs. Moore's son, local entertainer Terry Moore, Barry Woods, another local entertainer, also played guitar and sang.

A family has moved into a workshop on Baby Brook Lane. Under the workshop would be more correct. Four gray fox pups have been seen going in and out and playing puppy games in the yard and deep grass nearby. The mom gray fox has been seen sneaking about Hanover Village in search of food for the little ones. Watch it! Household cats seem to be a favorite. Although gray foxes are not too common in this area they do range from southern Canada to northern Columbia and Venezuela. The pups usually stay with the mother until fall. Occasionally they climb trees for food or protection.

The Hanover Town Office reports a surge of tax payments in the last few days of June. For those that didn't get in before June 30 the taxes still need to be paid. If not, later this fall 30-day notices will be issued followed by tax liens. Oh dear, let's not do that.

We truly hope everyone has the very best of holiday weekends. Look forward to a nice sunny day, good swimming, go fishing if you like and take in the fireworks. Just do not drink and drive. It is my favorite holiday even if I only sit in a lawn chair all day and pig out on hamburgers and hot dogs.

There's a huge beaver who has been living in the Umbagog Lake area at the bottom of Mill Hill for so long that folks have named him "Flappy". When Keona Bouchard saw him in the water, she excitedly exclaimed to her mom, "look at the seal". Flappy got Keona's seal of approval, even though he was a beaver.

Nancy Thew will be having horse manure to sell off and on throughout the summer at her home, "Northern Lights Farm", on Thistle Street. Nancy said she uses the money from the sales to buy food for Mister Bub - somehow that just seems to complete the cycle.

Nine members met at the Historical Society meeting last Thursday and discussed the displays for their "open house" and other roles in Upton's sesquicentennial celebration. On Sunday, July 11, after lunch, there will be a clean-up day to get the upstairs of the school house ready. All help in this endeavor will be welcomed. The next Historical Society meeting will be held on Thursday, July 22 at 6:30 p.m. at the school. All correspondence, membership dues and forms should be sent to the Upton Historical Society, c/o Joe Bernier, 357 Back Street, Upton, ME 04261.

Philip MacDonald from Pawnskin, Calif., wrote in Bobby Thompson's journal "Awesome and beautiful. Like being in a painting with all your friends. A deathbed memory."

On June 20, 2010, Gary Wright from Fredericksburg, Va., wrote that the area, the camp and the fireside chats make his visit an event he looks forward to all year.

The Planning Board met Friday night, but issued no permits. Their next meeting is Friday, July 30.

The next Selectmen meeting is Monday, July 5.

I hear that people are planning floats for the parade on August 21. I hope there are other floats being planned and will be entered that I haven't heard about! When's the last time there was a parade in Upton? Or, will this be a first in her 150 years? Enjoy your Independence Day celebration. Selah

Gilead

by Lin Chapman

July has arrived, Friends and Family Day is over, and now Hugh and I need to get plans finalized for the Oxford County Mineral and Gem Show. It is coming right up on July 10 and 11. The show runs from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday. There is something there for everyone. The items that the dealers sell range from mineral samples to finished jewelry. My brother, Steve McLain, celebrated a birthday last Sunday, June 27. Happy Belated Birthday. One of Gilead's Selectmen had a chance to be a part of the rescue last week of Millie Jackson when her car went into Round Pond. Jeremy Morin just happened to be driving by when he saw the car in the water and the crowd on the bank. When he found out that there was someone still in the car and two people in the water trying to help her, he did not hesitate, but jumped in to assist. It was a team effort by all those who stopped to help. Andre and Eileen Dupont of Gorham, N.H., hosted a family BBQ at their home last Saturday. Those that attended were Lorraine and Louise Bouffard from Quebec City, Quebec (cousins); Tom and Jennifer Dupont (Andre & Eileen's son & wife); Gerard Dupont; Lise McLain; Aline Dupont; and Barry Normandeau from Groveton, N.H.

Hugh and I had company this past weekend. Our granddaughters, Annie and Sidney, spent Saturday and Sunday night with us. On Sunday, we spent some time at Libby Pool in Gorham so the girls could go swimming. Mary Tyler and Sandra Laughy stopped by the house Sunday with pictures of the new baby in the family. Olivia May Bell was born Friday, June 25, at 7:12 a.m., weighing 6 pounds even, and 18" long. She is the daughter of Adam and Jessie Bell. Sandra and Harry Laughy raised Adam from the time he was 7 years old.

Route 2 construction is still on-going. Last Friday, Pike Industries showed up with paving equipment, but the rain on Monday delayed any paving projects. They are hoping to get the paving done and start re-routing traffic over the new bridge before too long. Got any news? Call 836-2987 or email chapmal@hotmail.com.

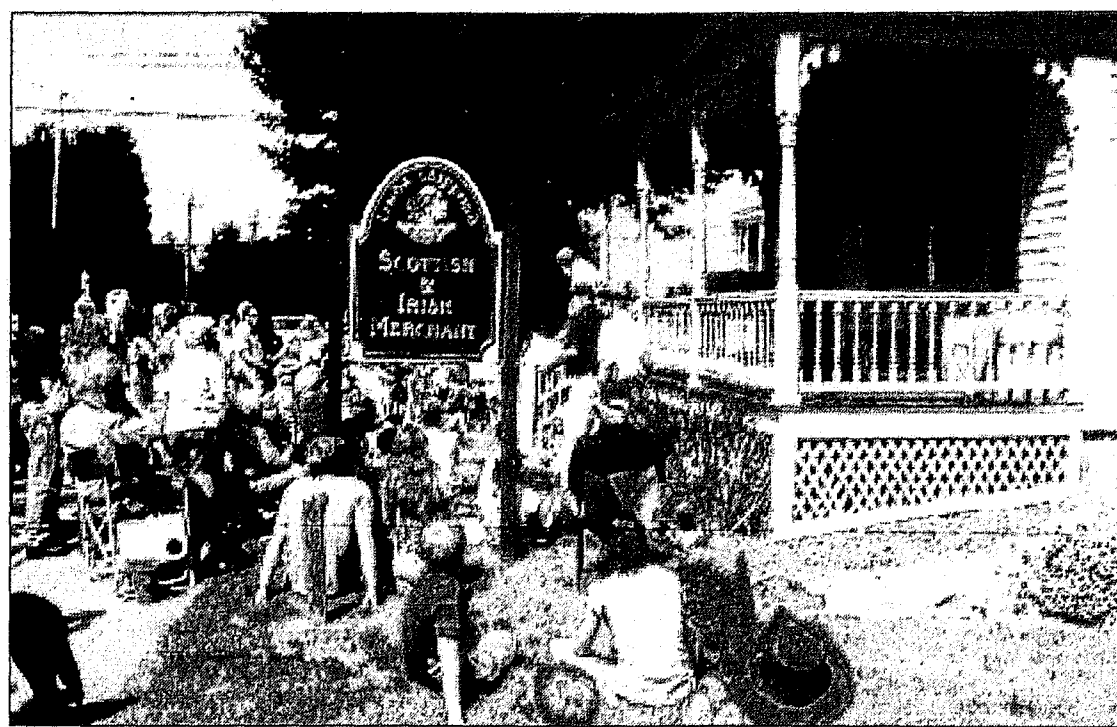

Andover

by Melinda Averill

Hello Andover Friends, Happy Fourth of July! This summer is moving right along, isn't it!

Monday July 12 the Andover Recreation Committee will be having their monthly meeting at the Town Hall, starting at 7 p.m.. At this meeting people may also either sign up or get information about the bike program that the Rec. Comm. will host this summer. The committee and friends are doing a good job with offering several activities this year. Hats off to them.

Sympathy is extended to Jennifer and Fred McPherson and family for the loss of Jennifer's mother, Susan Farrar. She was a longtime resident of Alabama, most recently living with her daughter and family in Andover. She is survived SEEKING BETHEL'S MOST BEAUTIFUL PORCH—The porch of Linda Clifford, Scottish Irish Merchant, will be the starting point Saturday at 12:30 p.m. as "Painting the Porch: In Fifteen Minutes," the first act of a play on five porches, gets underway during the Bethel Art Fair. Clifford's porch is shown here during last year's Porch Plays presentation. Spectators this year will meet the "Welcoming Committee" accompanied by members of the Mahosuc Community Band. This committee of town notables (Sylvia and Norman Clanton, Lu Prada, Polly Davis and Bob McCartney) has been assembled to greet the rather pompous publisher of "Paint Me. Magazine" (Sharon Lyon), her assistant (Carole Timberlake), their driver (Jeffrey Parsons), and the "once-famous" artist (Ross Timberlake) who hopes to revive his career by painting the perfect porch for the cover of the magazine. Bethel has been named by the magazine as the winner of their "Maine's Most Beautiful Porch Town" contest and the artist has been hired to capture the "elegance and charm" of one of the town's porches. Other stops include: Act 2: 1:15 p.m., Kaufmann's porch on Mechanic Street; "Painting the Porch: Black and White." Act 3: 2 p.m., O'Donnell's Porch, Upper Main Street, "Painting the Porch: So the Porch Can Be Painted." Act 4: 2:45 p.m., the Frongillo's porch on Broad Street, "Painting the Porch: With a Little Help." Act 5: 3:30 p.m., the Bethel Common Gazebo, "Painting the Porch: Anywhere." Spectators are encouraged to bring a chair as they follow along with the acts, and to expect the unexpected.

Upcoming events at the Andover Public Library will be a book signing with Andover's own Angelo Kaltsos. On July 10 from 2-4 p.m., he will autograph copies of his book "Of Bears, Mice and Nails-Out-house Chronicles." They are also available for purchase at the Library.

Snow Valley Sno-Goers meet next Thursday, July 7 at their clubhouse.

The Andover Historical Society met on Monday at the building on Elm Street. Attending were Betsey P. White, Norma Farrington, Bev Swan, Trudy Akers and Eda Perkins. The calendar is at the printers and will be available at Olde Home Day weekend. They are also selling raffle tickets for "A Basket of Andover Collectibles and Goodies" (the basket itself is an antique, from Roberta Learned). Tickets are $1 each or 6 for $5. The items are valued at $200.

The Town Office will be closed on Monday, July 5, for the holiday. Take notice that it will be open today, Thursday, July 1, 8 a.m.-3 p.m. and Friday July 2, 9 a.m. until noon.

Enjoy the weekend.

Newry

by Seneca Corriveau

Hi again Readers and Friends. This week's column may be a bit dry and brief as I have come to discover that my fellow Newry citizens are somewhat shy. Either that or they may feel that their news isn't that entertaining and that is where they'd be wrong.

I thank those of you who have contacted me and offered up bits and pieces of your lives to share. It makes my task a little easier. I didn't realize that I would assume the role of reporter when I volunteered to take over this column. I think that some people get tight lipped when they see me coming, which I now find rather humorous. SO, if you get sick of hearing about my goats and my gardens, be warned. As you only have yourselves to blame.

School vacation has settled in upon us and I've got to admit that the first week was a bit rocky. But the kids and I have settled into our blessed summer routine fairly well. Lots of time is spent exploring the great outdoors by way of nature walks, wading in the brooks and streams near the house, fishing and swimming. But let's not forget the importance of roasting marshmallows and the consumption of tons of juicy, drippy watermelon. I really miss "seeded" watermelons. Their flavor was always so much sweeter than these new hybrid "seedless" watermelons. Most every store carries just these new bizarre oddities, scientists trying to step it up for convenience sake. A lazy, self-driven world has robbed our children the joy of spitting seeds at each other in all-out summertime war. Oh well, I never have been one to accept change easily. C'est la vie!

In other news, be sure to head to Bethel for the annual Art Fair on the Common and the Porch Players acting around Historic Bethel, taking place on Saturday, July 3rd. The Newry Town Office will be closed on Monday, July 5, in observance of Independence Day. Wishing you all a safe and memorable Fourth of July, be sure to pause for a moment to reflect on your freedom and the cost it was bought for. Show your colors this weekend and thank a veteran for your freedom!

As always, (I don't bite) please contact me with your news - "all the news, that is news that's fit to print". (207) 824-0836 or sabcart@gmail.

Waterford

by Rockie Graham

The 4th of July weekend is upon us and that to me really signifies summer. We have already had a few very summer-like days, now begins the parades, celebrations and fairs.

Like most places Waterford's July 4th celebrations occur on Monday, July 5. There is a breakfast at the Wilkins House on Plummer Hill from 7:30 to 10 a.m. Scrambled eggs, bacon, sausage, pancakes, muffins, donuts, juice and coffee will be served. Great place for breakfast and good company. $6 adults and $3 kids. There is also a yard sale until 11 a.m.

Also on the 5th, Mt. Tirem Masonic Lodge will hold a yard sale from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. Come and find a special gift for summer.

The 4th of July Parade in Waterford is also on July 5. It starts at Waterford Elementary School at 11:30 a.m.

July 1 to Aug 15, the Art of Helen Anna Morton will be featured at Bethel Historical Society in Bethel.

Time to pick your strawberries while they are still good. Rumors are that it is a bumper crop. We haven't made it yet, but there is still a little time.

Moving into more of our house all the time. Maybe by the 4th we will be all in.

Have a great and safe 4th of July.

Weather for gardening has certainly been much better this year than last - except for fruit trees which froze just when they were fully blossomed and destroyed much of the crop.

I was really proud to announce that we had our first fresh peas from our garden on June 25, a record for me - until Alice McGinnis told us she has been having peas for 2 or 3 weeks! Lettuce, chard and beet greens are ready too.

I am most pleased and relieved that the crows didn't pull up any of my corn this year. I think that was due to the advice that Juanita Korhonen gave me (String a string 2" to 3" above the ground along all your rows of corn.) It seems to have worked for me, as my corn is now about knee-high - high enough to be out of danger from crows! I still have to worry about coons and squirrels destroying the ears just as the corn begins to ripen! Snuffly helps some with this problem by chasing those predators away! He also trees some of them every little while!

Oh, yes. Raspberries are beginning to ripen, and blueberries are beginning to show a little color here and there; I expect the arrival of the Japanese beetles any day now!

Some of our feathered friends have met with disaster recently. The robin's nest in the maple tree outside our kitchen window was somehow knocked to the ground and its tiny occupants apparently killed or kidnapped during the three days last week while we were in Bangor for the Legion and 40 & 8 conventions. Also, the tiny green and yellow warbler (I don't know its proper name) that was building its nest just outside our dining room window succumbed to an apparent sudden impact with that window, as I found the bird dead on the deck outside the window. Nest construction was halted by that accident.

At least, the tree swallows seem to be having a successful breeding season, by the look at the number of birds swooping around the pasture.

My niece, Elsie Aylward, now has two members of her family pulling part-time duty as EMT's with the Bethel ambulance - Josh and Crystal. She recommends that the Citizen begin to report on the many calls that the ambulance Summer is here in all its glory: lots of sun and hot weather and at times spells of rain. One evening after thunder and lightning and rain, a beautiful bright rainbow rose from the ocean and ended among the trees on shore. Above this appeared a more subdued rainbow, pretty but not so colorful. They put on a good show for all of us at Ferry Beach. We were all in awe at the beauty observed from the porch of the main building, Quillin.

About 60 people were there for work week at the Unitarian Universalist Camp and Conference Center in Saco. I was a member of the sewing group making valances and curtains for the largest dormitory for it had been improved and painted, with new carpets in rooms and hallways. During the winter, new bunk beds had been built for all the rooms. Everything is new and clean and bright.

Each day we were up at 5:30 for a walk on the beach to see what the waves had washed up during the night. With breakfast at 7 all were ready for work - 8 to 12. Child care was available for the little ones. As there were many chores to do before the opening in a week, each chose his or her specialty. Carpentry, pressure washing of the buildings, painting porch floors and touch-up all around, gardeners for weeding and mulching of flower beds. Debris from the trees in the camping grove was gathered and the areas were raked. With so many busy hands all was accomplished and the grounds and buildings were ready for the summer guests.

The afternoons were for playing, swimming or sunning on the beach, walking, reading, or rocking and talking in the shade on the porch. All were busy. Quiet time was at 11 p.m.

Jude Lamb was one of the coordinators. Her six grandchildren, my great-grandchildren, each came for one or two nights - not all at once though!

One afternoon activity was making hoola hoops. Of course, we all had to learn the proper way to twirl them. I managed to keep mine from slipping to the ground. Quite an exercise. They are supposed to tighten the muscles around the abdomen and waist. Guess we should use them often!

The West Paris Universalist Church is closed for the summer but West Summer Universalist Church will hold services starting July 11 at 11 a.m.

Muffin was cared for by good neighbors up the street. She was glad to see me and slept close all night.

Services at the Baptist Church are Sunday school at 9:15, morning worship at 10:30, evening service at 6 p.m. On Wednesday at 5:30 is youth group and 6:30 prayer meeting. VBS is all this week - all children welcome.

Quarterly business meeting is July 11 at 5 p.m. Marybeth Hoover gave a very nice presentation of her trip to Papua New Guinea at the evening service on June 20.

Franklin Grange 124 held CWA night on Monday, June 21 at 6 p.m. Supper was held before the meeting. Historical Society
Paul Billings watched the Historical Society Museum recently. The Society meeting was postponed in June as many members were away. Next meeting is July 10.

The museum features the research of the late Ruby Emery on Woodstock which many visitors like to consult. There are many books on various topics of interest in the library.

They have a nice art gallery upstairs to which some prints were just added. Most of the art is supplied by Curator Larry Billings, including original oils and many prints. There are surprisingly few places you can see fine art in this area. The special exhibit at the Historical Society Museum is a poster on the Universities of Great Britain.

The museum is open each Saturday this summer from 1 to 4 p.m.

I was sorry to hear of the death of Nettie Fitzpatrick last week. She went often to Praise Assembly many years ago. I hadn't seen her for some time but that doesn't make the sense of loss any less. Sincerest sympathy goes to the members of her family and others who loved her.

The weather today certainly was typical Maine weather, never know what it is up to next. I saw sun, wind, clouds, rain, and then back to sun again. Whenever it rains, Chloe takes it personally and has to go out and run up and down her run barking furiously. Then, duty done, she demands to be let back inside immediately before she gets too wet. She is not a water dog. She also does not care for squirrels, chipmunks, and birds in the yard but there she is out of luck because I like to put food out for them and they seem to understand that, although noisy she may be, she cannot get at them and they go about eating and ignoring her.

Right now, though, I am trying to get more than a glimpse at a couple little animals that come into the backyard after something to eat. It can't be for the food I put out because I don't put anything out there but something calls them. I am a little concerned that they might be baby rats. They look too big to be mice, although Garbo has caught two recently, but they do not go up trees and they seem to be gray and they come up over the bank and go back the same way. They just are very fast and the vegetation has grown very fast and thick this year so I can't get a good look at them.

Obviously I don't care for rats so I would really like to know what they are. I suppose it won't make much difference because I cannot think of any way to get rid of them that won't affect the little squirrels and chipmunks, short of shooting them and I don't like guns and I do like the squirrels and chipmunks.

Wednesday evening we finished the book of Isaiah at Praise Assembly just in time before we move into the Linnell Conference Center. There we will be having more to offer because we have more space so there will be two classes for adults and activities for the children as our new couple, Vince and Tracey Allegra, from Pastor Thacker's home church in Maryland, will be Youth Directors. They have a seven-year-old daughter, Lexie, who is looking forward to meeting some new friends.

We are starting off this weekend with the Lord Family from Blue Hill and hope that we will see many people who have already met them and like them and their music and, obviously, some new people who haven't met them yet.

It promises to be a fun, and busy, summer and probably, as usual, altogether too short. So, get out and enjoy!

From Community Lakes Association

Come hear the latest about the health of our ponds and lakes and how the milfoil invasion is being controlled.

The Community Lakes Association will be holding its annual meeting July 10 (Saturday) at 9 a.m. at the Woodstock Town Office. We will be updated on the milfoil control program for our ponds, hear about our large new grant, and hear about the new milfoil harvesting boat we have purchased and the team of divers who will be working with CLA this summer.

The meeting is open to everyone - members and non-members alike. If you live on a pond or simply love all our wonderful bodies of water, then come find out what we are doing.

Come early and have some coffee, snacks, and see old friends and maybe meet some new ones.

For more information, call 665-2788 or visit our website, www.communitylakesassociation.org.

The Community Lakes Association is organized to help protect the health and beauty of the ponds and lakes in and around the towns of Greenwood and Woodstock as well as Songo Pond in Bethel.

Summer Camp has begun!
This was the first week of our summer camp season. We'll have about 100 kids on-site participating in such programs as: Junior explorer and Outdoor Adventure day programs, Primitive Skills, Fishing Camp, Junior Maine Woodsman, Conservation Camp, and Survivor Camp. There are a few bunk spaces left for next week and slots are available throughout the summer.

Planning retreat gives birth to revived missions and vision
We now have two solid years under our belt as the University of Maine's 4-H Camp and Learning Center at Bryant Pond. Several months ago, the Bryant Pond staff got together to look at where we've been and where we want to go. See our website for results. Our new boat has arrived

A ROSE TREE?—William Baffin climbing roses get their name for an obvious reason, but the Baffin bush at Frank Vogt's house in Bethel outdid itself this spring by climbing to the top of one of Vogt's trees. Vogt said he had never seen it climb so high.

Thanks to a U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service grant and partnership with the Community Lakes Association to help control milfoil, this summer we will be using a new pontoon boat to explore the local lakes and ponds. Young people who take part in some of our programs will become part of the "Youth Plant Patrol". See more at our website.

Save the date
We are excited to announce the first ever Bryant Pond 4-H Camp Golf Classic. This event will take place at the Poland Spring Golf Course on Wednesday, Sept. 8, 2010. Read more at our website. Visit our website for addi-

18th Annual Fourth of July Picnic and August Summer Heritage Festival / Antiquarian Supper
The 18th Annual Fourth of July Community Picnic and Brass Band Concert, featuring a two hour performance by the Portland Brass Quintet, will be held on the 234th anniversary of American Independence on the grounds of the Dr. Moses Mason House (14 Broad St.), beginning at 11:30 a.m. These talented musicians have been an important part of this event for the past eighteen years.

This event harkens back to the 1850s when Dr. Mason hosted a picnic with brass bands and patriotic orations on the Fourth of July. If the weather is inclement, the event will take place at the Middle Intervale Meetinghouse. The speaker for the event will be Bethel Town Manager, Jim Doar, and the color guard from the Mundt-Allen American Legion will present the colors prior to the start of the concert with the national anthem.

After a five-year hiatus, the Bethel Antiquarian Supper, a local tradition dating back to 1855, will be held on August 14 during the Society's annual Summer Heritage Festival. Before the Civil War, citizens in many New England towns began holding so-called "antiquarian suppers." During these occasions, people dressed in old fashioned clothes, brought relics (anything odd or old) to exhibit, shared stories of days gone by, and enjoyed a bountiful meal of unusual and old-time foods. In western Maine, the earliest antiquarian suppers were held by members of the Bethel Farmer's Club (the first in Maine) between 1855 and 1857. The 2010 event will follow the older pattern, with some new "twists" thrown in.

In order to cover the expenses of these events, tax-deductible contributions to the Society are being solicited.

The Portland Brass Quintet fee is $2000, and the Antiquarian Supper will cost about $300, so any contributions would be gratefully received, and will help greatly in making this a memorable summer in Bethel.

Contributions in any amount can be sent to the Society at P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217.

Among the most recent contributors are: Bessie Bennett, Bethel; David Kristol/Marjorie Brandriss, Summit, N.J.; Charles and Frances Richmond, Simi Valley, Calif.; Eric and Lucia Schwarz, Bethel; Henry and Patricia Stewart, Bryant Pond; William Strauss, Albany Township; Virginia Cole, Bethel; Jean K. Owen, Bethel; Marilyn and Eric Sahlberg, Bethel; Peggy and Steve Wight, Newry; Richard Valentine, Robert and Bethia Newmarker, Bluffton, S.C.; Peggy Paine, Monson, Mass.; Donald M. Christie, Jr., Gray; Norman and Sylvia Clanton, Newry; Dean and Priscella Walker, Bethel; Rotary Club of Bethel; Annie Hastings, Bethel; Frank and Janet Vogt, Bethel; Paula and Dillon Gillies, Bethel; Stan Howe, Bethel. Much appreciation is extended to all of these individuals for their generous support.

White Mountain
National Forest
Storing Food Properly
Protects You and the Bear

The White Mountain National Forest wants visitors to have a great and safe recreation experience. We would like to remind visitors that the nearly 800,000 acre National Forest may feel like their backyard, but it is wild land. While many visitors and campers never encounter a bear, black bears are a part of the Forest and can quickly become habituated to human food in campgrounds. Several incidents have been reported this year involving bears looking for food at recreation sites in the Forest. Bears have been seen rummaging through coolers at several campgrounds, and another bear made its way into a tent in the backcountry.

It is vital that you keep a clean campsite to ensure bears and other animals don't forage for your food. A determined bear will climb in your tent, through a car window and even on top of a car in search of food in coolers. Improperly stored food not only attracts bears to people currently camping at a site, but it lets the bear know that it can find food at that campsite in the future. The bear may return to the site when other families are recreating there.

Bears are meant to be wild and feeding them creates negative consequences for them. Bears that get too used to people may have to be trapped and relocated, and if they continually return, may even be killed. Remember, "A fed bear is a dead bear."

The feeding of bears, intentional or unintentional, is prohibited in the White Mountain National Forest. Visitors who have not properly stored their food may receive a citation. Following safe food storage practices protects both you and the bears.

"I can't emphasize enough how important it is for people to store their food properly to keep visitors safe and to make sure bears have a place in the Forest," said Kathy Starke,

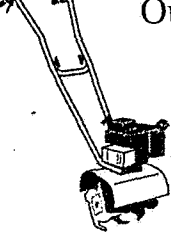

A BIRTHDAY PADDLE
In celebration of his 91st birthday on the summer solstice, Ken Bohr (in front of canoe) of Bethel last week enjoyed a leisurely paddle on Songo Pond. An experienced canoeist since he was a young boy, Ken has taken numerous multi-day canoe trips on the lakes and rivers of Maine. From left: Bohr, his daughter Gretchen Courage, and Kevin Slater.
(Photo: Mac Davis)

Wildlife Biologist for the Androscoggin Ranger District. It is your responsibility to ensure your safety and that of future campers by not purposefully or inadvertently feeding bears. So remember:

Always keep a clean camp. Don't leave any food (including condiments) out when not in use. Store food in bear-resistant units, hard-shelled vehicles or car trunks.

Keep sleeping areas, tents, and sleeping bags free of food and odor. Don't sleep in clothes you cooked or handled fish or game in. Never bury or burn food waste. If camping in the backcountry, hang your food bag at least 10 feet off the ground and 5 feet out from a tree limb that could support a bear. If possible, in backcountry areas, place sleeping tents at least 100 yards away from food storage and cooking areas. For more information on dealing with black bears, visit the New Hampshire Fish & Game Department's website at www.wildnh.com/Wildlife/faqs_black_bears.htm.

Thank You to the 127 people who came to our home to help celebrate our 50th anniversary.

It was a total shock to Eddy.

Special thanks to Don Cummings for his "dirty work" in keeping Ed away.

Also thank you to our daughter, Sharon and family for their help with this wonderful occasion.

Many beautiful cards were received from those unable to attend.

Gifts were won by Shelley Douglass, Zoe Bodwell and Breana Dupont.

Meghan Rothschild didn't think indoor tanning would hurt her.
She was wrong.
UV light from indoor tanning, especially when exposed at an early age, can increase your risk of melanoma... the deadliest form of skin cancer.
That's what Meghan developed when she was 20 after being a frequent indoor tanner since she was 17.
Current estimates show that 1 in 5 Americans will develop skin cancer.
Do you want to be the one... like Meghan?
Indoor tanning is out.
